IN A HURRY

A traffic observer who is also an observer of human nature remarks that it is the "hurry bug" that causes most accidents. He thinks it is almost as definite as the hookworm, which makes people unnaturally and insufferably slow. It simply works in the opposite way, developing a mania for speed.

The victims of this mania imagine they have to be always going at maximum velocity. They try to keep up their speed regardless of obstacles, laws or other people's rights. So they are always getting smashed up or mangled up somebody else. And what does it get them, even if they escape violent damage? In plunging across town at breakneck speed they may save, if they are lucky, a few minutes. What can they do with those few minutes.

They waste it, in all probability, smoking or chatting, to relieve the strain. Or else they plunge just a few seconds into their work, and waste the time saved, and more, by nervous and unwise action.

It is alright to be in a hurry, but all wrong to have one's mind in a hurry. The biggest and most successful men who do not let themselves get hurried, and who therefore see clearly and act calmly and make no mistakes.

THE FULL PAGE AD.

As the newspaper man looks over the exchanges coming from various parts of the country, he is impressed with the great use that is being made of advertising. The advertising space used in newspapers has greatly increased.

Take the city dailies, for instance. If you took the newspaper which before the war was used to run an average of about 16 pages, the chances are that that paper will be running today from 24 to 32 pages. The enlargement is not primarily due to the use of more news, though the space given to reading matter has increased. The big share of the increase is due to advertising.

It is interesting also to see how many concerns are interested there that are taking big ads of a half page space. It is interesting also to see how many concerns are interested there that are taking big ads of a half page space. ### LESSONS OF LIFE

Every person should go to the cemetery at least twice in life. Once at the end of life, and first early in life to reflect on the brevity of life and the insufficiency of worldly goods. There is no place like a quiet churchyard for meditation and there is no room in every life for more serious thoughts.

The tombstones hold a moral for all living. There is inscribed the human virtues, but among the inscriptions there is no record of estates left behind, fortunes made and spent and worldly fame attained. The magnificence and sculpture of the stone or the vault alone remain to remind the world of the "boast of the heady and the pomp of power."

Why should human beings worry and struggle through life's feet span in pursuit of wealth, fame, luxuries, vanities and all those other evanescent things we choose to call riches? The poor are distressed by too little money, the moderately wealthy by the thought that others possess more wealth than they, and the rich by too much money.

The Garden of Paradise was paradise only so long as Adam and Eve entertained no thought of worldly things. There were no pestering bank accounts, troublesome servants, expensive automobiles, business worries and social and fashion detentions in Paradise.

Very few people have learned the secret of living well. Most of us measure our material in terms of dollars and social position. The number is negligible which views life as a golden opportunity to work and think and be joyful.

The older generation is worrying about the younger generation, and always has.

No goods purchased abroad are cheap that take the place of our own raw material.

Having a good appetite can often be turned into a graceful compliment to the cook.

One reason why boys leave the farm is the 14-hour day.

Some persons seem to be satisfied if they can prevent others from having a good time.

AN EFFECTIVE SPEECH

A young man who was more ordinary intelligence, but who, by the way, is an exceedingly handsome young fellow, concluded to pay a visit to a public school. He was particularly proud to be invited to a certain department of the institution, over which an accomplished and bewitching young lady presided. After the usual exercises, the pre-arranged prospectus asked her to make an "evening" and the young man, with the little folks arranged to be present, was called upon to deliver a speech. He was so nervous that he could not attempt a speech, and he was and opened with the following extraordinary:

"I love to make such an advancement as you are making. And I know you love your teacher—do you not? I do! And that is I mean I loved my teacher when I was a little boy."

After this declaration of affection prevailed among the students, while the speaker was nervously handling an ink-bottle on the desk by which he was standing. After cheering subsided, he again proceeded, still fumbling with the ink-bottle.

"I have often seen boys and girls use the foot, but—"

At this juncture he tipped the ink over, which went streaming down the desk, and he immediately leaped out of his seat while the headmaster, wiped it up, and then placed it back in his pocket from which he took it.

In the meantime the scholars were giggling while the schoolmaster shook his head at the boy who was so sure that she would settle with them in the morning for their bad demeanor.

Then continued: "As I was about to remark, when I was young I—I—I well—"

He became confused. The perspiration began running down his forehead, and he was so nervous that he was unable to say a word further. He handed the ink, which he had hid the desk of the ink, gave it a wipe across his brow, and then down each cheek. Hoping to discover what he had done, and coming to a realising sense of his situation, he grabbed his hat and went of the schoolroom like a shot out of a gun, without even bidding the charming young schoolmistress a fond farewell.

YOU CAN ALWAYS TELL

You can always tell a brother from the way he parts his hair. You can always tell a dentist. When you're in a dentist's chair, you can tell him by his touch. You can always tell a printer. But you cannot tell him much.

He: "Did you keep your donation secret?"
She: "I sent an anonymous check."

The first auction sale of horses that has taken place in Montreal for some years was opened at the East End Stock Market, P.O. Box 25, St. Paul, on Tuesday last. It was stated that approximately 200 horses were sold. The demand was mostly for heavy draught horses, Percherons, Clydesdales and the like, for carriages and for lumbering purposes, coming chiefly from Alberta and Saskatchewan, and some from the middle west.

Consequent upon an agreement reached at a general conference of Canadian and United States Telegraph companies the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs have announced that code words will be accepted at all their offices in future for day and night letters. This departure will affect both Canadian and international business, the companies concerned being: the Postal-Telegraph Company, the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs, the Canadian National Telegraphs and the Western Union Telegraph Company.

MAKING A CONVENIENCE OF A BUSINESS

Many there are who make of a legitimate and well-established business nothing but a convenience—a place from which to get further afield. They do not hesitate to send their good money away for many things they need, and which could just as satisfactorily and much more promptly be supplied by their home merchants and dealers. No business, no matter of what nature, can long exist on this sort of patronage. Nor is it fair to expect that it should. The public expect to receive services as when they demand it, but many do not do their part in making this possible.

There are manufacturing industries with fairly complete equipment which, because of such lack of consideration for the much of the time. It must be patent to all that a busy plant can operate much more cheaply than one which is working only on part time. Therefore it should be the policy of all to place their business of whatever kind it may be with the local plant or factory to the end that it may be kept reasonably busy and thus be in a position to give its best service.

When it is printed matter of any kind, remember the plant and equipment of
